SIXTY-SIXTH YEAR—No. 154

Lone survivor of a yachting party on Lake Michigan, Patricia Smith (above) 18, struggled to shore at Marinette, Wis., after seven hours in the icy waters. With her father, Leatham Smith, and three others the girl was aboard a 33-foot sloop returning from a yacht race when they were struck by a squall that overturned the sloop. The young girl struggled for 13 miles through the water before reaching shore.

PA NEW OBSERVES

New Castle and Lawrence county got their first taste of real weather on Monday, and the sample is being continued today. The weather was more than welcome, however, as crops have been badly in need of some real warm weather after the long continued rainy season.

New Castle is steadily developing into a city with a lot of important small industries. New enterprises have been developing here in recent months and years which are an important asset to the community's welfare.

If the national restrictions had not been clamped down on building of other than homes, New Castle would have been well on the way to a building boom of considerable proportions downtown, Pa. News suggests. Several new structures are pending, once the 20 sign is secured and materials for buildings become available.

The rose bushes along the stone wall at the Hoyt property on North Mercer street hill, are now in their full beauty. Hundreds of roses are blooming on the vines clustered over the top of the wall.

Elderberries should be an excellent crop in Lawrence county if the great abundance of blossoms now in evidence in the fields of the local area are any criterion.

Listed among the traffic hazards which motorists are advised to look out for, on the Pennsylvania Highway Department Detour Bulletin, is that on route 422 between New Castle and the Ohio state line, where construction is under way over a new location of the highway. Traffic uses the present route. Removal is scheduled for November 15.

SHIP IS STRANDED
COPENHAGEN, June 25.—(INS)—Salvage workers attempted to remove cargo from the grounded U. S. Liberty ship John Trumbull today in an effort to float the vessel. The ten thousand-ton ship became stranded off Copenhagen last night. Its crew was removed by rescue craft to Norderbo. The vessel was en route to the Polish port of Gdynia from the Gulf of Mexico.

Compromise O.P.A. Bill Is Before Congress

Congress Near Final Action On New O.P.A. Bill

House Expects To Vote On Measure Extending Price Control Today

O. P. A. AUTHORITY MUCH CURTAILED

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(INS)—Congress may take final action today on new price control legislation continuing the OPA for another year, but drastically curtailing its authority.

With existing price control legislation expiring at midnight Sunday, the house slated a vote this afternoon on a compromise measure which would extend the act for one year, but with many of its provisions repealed.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley said the senate would act also this afternoon following anticipated house adoption of the new bill, if sufficient time remained. Otherwise it will be sent to the White House.

Truman May Approve
The chances that the chief executive would approve the measure were considerably heightened when the conferees agreed to drop a senate amendment ending price controls June 30 on livestock, meat, poultry, eggs, milk and other dairy products, petroleum and tobacco.

Sen. Tobey (R) N. H., ranking senate minority conferee, broke a deadlock on the food decontrol amendment which had threatened an impasse. Tobey reversed his previous stand and voted with the senate Democratic conferees to drop the amendment.

Declares Atom Bomb At Bikini Threatens Planet

PARIS, June 25.—(INS)—The warning that the American atom bomb tests at Bikini atoll threaten the "existence of the planet" was reiterated today by Robert Esau, Pelterie, eminent French physicist. Pelterie told the French Academy of Sciences that "in principle" water was a nuclear explosive just as dangerous as uranium and that the Bikini blast may set off an uncontrollable chain reaction.

Other physicists present discounted his fears.

Wolves Club Is Seeking Aid For People Of Italy

Campaign For Clothing, Shoes And Funds Under Way In New Castle

Angelo Frediani, chairman of the Wolves club's campaign to procure clothing, shoes and financial contributions to the amount of $5,000 for the needy of Italy, today reported that the club is deeply gratified with the manner in which New Castle residents have responded to the appeal. The campaign will end June 30, he explained, hence those who have not yet, but desire to make contributions of clothing, shoes or money may do so soon as possible.

Willing To Help
"The people of New Castle have most assuredly shown since the campaign started that they are ever willing to help people in distress. During the Wolves club campaign, $1,200 has been contributed in addition to the clothing and shoes. It is believed that, now that the people know there are only a few days remaining in which to contribute, they will do so immediately."

The Wolves club set a quota of $5,000. Sums have been given by the residents in all walks of life, realizing that, with money, some of the vitally needed items so necessary to alleviation of widespread distress in Italy will be possible," Mr. Frediani stated.

Need Is Great
"But there is also a great need for new and used clothing and shoes," Mr. Frediani explained, "that the needy will welcome them with heartfelt thanks."

He said that all money contributions should be sent to the Wolves club.

Half Of New York Retail Butcher Shops Are Closed

NEW YORK, June 25.—(INS)—Half of New York City's retail butcher shops were closed today for lack of merchandise and 1,000 Kosher delicatessens announced they would sell cold cuts only in sandwiches.

Butcher shops remaining open have little to offer but poultry and even that is getting low. Fish markets which have been enjoying a boom also were running out of supplies.

Meat dishes remained on restaurant menus, however, with diners still privileged to select from a comparatively plentiful supply of beef, pork, lamb and veal.

President May Head To Northwest For His Vacation

Alaska May Also Be Included If President Gets Chance For Vacation Outing

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(INS)—If President Truman is able to take a brief vacation trip this summer, the best bet right now is that he will board his plane, "The Sacred Cow," and head for the Pacific northwest.

Washington state, and probably Alaska, would be the locale for the president's summer outing.

At the moment, however, the chief executive is sticking close to his desk in the White House and waiting for congress to get through a still heavy legislative schedule.

Speculating On A-Bomb Damage In Bikini Blast

ABOARD USS PANAMINT, Bikini-Island, June 25.—Scientists aboard the USS Panamint en route to the atomic bomb experiments speculated today on the amount of damage the A-bomb will cause to the 77 target ships clustered in Bikini lagoon.

In a deck chair interview, Dr. John Yoe, chemistry professor at the University of Virginia, pointed out that the test will not represent actual battle conditions because naval personnel will not be aboard target ships to fight fires and sea-

Report 300 Die In Floods In Korea

SEOUL, Korea, June 25.—(INS)—Unofficial reports said today that more than 300 persons were killed at the city of Pyung, 47 miles south of Seoul, when they were trapped in their homes by a sudden flood.

The flood culminated weeks of heavy rainfall in south Korea. Rescue parties were unable to reach the city immediately but it was believed that a large earth dam across an irrigation reservoir broke and inundated the city.

Other areas in southern Korea were hard-hit by the flood and railroad traffic was tied up when bridges and road-beds were washed out.

In Seoul, alone, 970 homes were flooded and many of them, of mud construction, collapsed.

Body Of Missing Boy Is Located

Son Of Capt. And Mrs. Dick Thompson, Of Mechanicsburg, Was Drowned

Monday evening Mrs. William A. Confer of 110 West Grant street received a phone message from her daughter and son-in-law, Capt. and Mrs. Dick Thompson of Mechanicsburg, that the latter's small son's body had been found that evening in the creek which flows about 300 yards from the house.

The creek has receded from its flood condition, making it easier to locate the child's body.

On Saturday afternoon, June 15, the Thompson boy, who would have been three years of age in July, was discovered to be missing from home about 1 o'clock. Later his shoes and stockings were found near by and search was at once begun. A large force of army and navy men joined and dragged the creek which was at flood stage on account of recent heavy rain, almost reaching the footbridge crossing to the Thompson cottage.

The surrounding woods was also thoroughly searched and the Thompsons were residing in a cottage in Williams Grove, Mechanicsburg. Capt. Thompson is stationed at Middletown. He had first seen his son in October, he having been overseas for 33 months in the European theater of operations.

Best Hot Weather Rule Seems To Be "Take It Easy"

Hot weather is hot weather and people should know that by now, thinks Dr. William Womer, city health officer.

The trouble is, they don't. Every summer they get sick from sunburn, collapse from heat strokes and are miserable because of their poison ivy.

Dr. Womer's remedy for the whole business is merely a precaution. Stay away from what hurts you. If it's a hot day, don't go shopping or golfing or sunbathing because that's leading with your chin.

No Sympathy For Sunburn
"What some people see in getting themselves roasted like a duck is just a fool's errand," Dr. Womer asserts. He offers no sympathy to vacationists who spend three days recovering from a day in the sun. Besides resulting in unattractive

HOTTEST DAY! BUT TALK IS OF CHRISTMAS

With the temperature breathing down the back of the neck of ninety-eight at noon today it seems an odd time to talk about Christmas. But it's the subject of conversation in the Greater New Castle Association office today.

The Merchants Division of the Association has met and decided that Christmas season of 1946 will be an old-fashioned one with decorations, a parade and a lot of the proper atmosphere attendant to the season.

As you wipe your brow today and wonder where you could get a long, tall cool drink, remember that Christmas will be an old time affair this year.

Trieste Problem Is Blocking Way To Treaty Parley

Russian Obstinacy Holds Up Byrnes' Efforts To Embark On Peace Conference

PARIS, June 25.—(INS)—American speedup plans to end Big Four foreign ministers sessions and embark on a general peace conference collided today with Russian obstinacy on the ultimate disposition of Trieste.

There are admittedly many other problems to be solved, but the statement agree that the Adriatic port city now blocks the road to peace treaties for five Axis satellites.

The western powers—France, Britain and the U. S.—are determined that Trieste remain Italian. The Soviet Union insists it be awarded to Yugoslavia.

Hope of discovering a middle ground between those two viewpoints was said to have led late last night to a secret conclave between U. S. Secretary of State Byrnes and Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov.

One American spokesman accused Russia openly of resorting to "de-laying tactics" on disputed issues. He claimed evidence of America's (Continued on Page Two)

G. I. Terminal Leave Pay Roll To Be Reported

Measure Passed By House Will Come Before Senate For Action

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(INS)—Senate committee action was lined up today on a G. I. terminal leave pay bill estimated to cost 3½ billion dollars in tax-free compensation to enlisted men of the Second World War.

Sen. Johnson (D) Colo. said the House-passed bill would be reported favorably to the full military committee today by a three-man subcommittee which he heads.

The measure permits discharged G. I.'s for the first time to collect cash for unused and accumulated leave up to a maximum of 120 days. Officers now may collect terminal leave pay up to a total of four months.

Johnson said his subcommittee had only one change to recommend in the House bill—a proviso fixing a termination date of December 31, 1946. After this date leave may not be allowed to pile up for more than 30 days and no payments "what-ever" may be made in lieu of leave.

Old Capone Gang Remnants Being Sought In Attack

Chicago Man Is Wounded In Gangland Type Of Shotgun Attack Last Night

CHICAGO, June 25.—(INS)—Police today were looking for five members of the old Al Capone syndicate in connection with the shotgun attack of James M. Ragen, 65, head of the Continental Press, a nationwide racing information service.

Ragen was seriously wounded in the right shoulder and arm by one of two or more shotgun blasts fired into his automobile as it stopped for a traffic light last night.

Assailants Pursued
A rickety five-ton truck from which the shots were fired was pursued by two bodyguards who were following Ragen's car. Shots were exchanged between the two cars, imperiling scores of pedestrians in the vicinity. But the would-be assassins escaped when motor trouble halted pursuit by the bodyguards' car.

Later, the bodyguards took Ragen to Michael Reese hospital where he was placed under an oxygen tent. Physicians said that while his condition is serious, he will recover.

Ragen, who outdistanced two men in an automobile chase through South Side streets last April, said that the syndicate—composed of remnants of the old Capone gang—was attempting to muscle into his business. He complained that he had been threatened by them several times.

New Double-Line System In Effect On County Roads

Lines Are Being Made Now; Cars May Cross Dotted But Not Solid Line

Preparing to make the new double-lines which will be used throughout the county from now on, the highway force has been painting small marks along the center of the roads, as a guide for the machines which will do the job.

Besides the double center line, says Highway Superintendent Fred Martin, there will be an off-center line on curves. Cars will not be allowed to drive across the solid line, which will be painted wherever the driver of a car could not see more than 500 feet ahead. Cars may cross dotted line, however.

All of the highways will be marked in about a week, Mr. Martin said. The preliminary marking has taken about two weeks.

Marine Station Not To Suspend

Sgt. Philip R. Sasse, chief of the U. S. Marine recruiting station in this city, announced that he has received orders from Pittsburgh extending his stay here and that recruiting would go on as usual from room 211 of the Post Office building.

Last-minute instructions from the Pittsburgh office changed the original plans which called for a two-week suspension of recruiting work in the city.

Sgt. Sasse is prepared to interview young men between the ages of 17 and 30 for enlistment into the corps. Men may select their duty with the Marines, and at the present time men for aviation jobs are especially needed.

First orchestra leader to conduct without using the baton was George J. Webb. He instituted this practice in Boston in 1843.

good faith in Europe could be found in the U. S. move to restore to the countries concerned all goods seized by Germany in Hungary, Italy and Austria.

Disputes from Trieste, meanwhile, reported that hundreds of Italians are fleeing the Istrian city of Pola in the belief the Big Four have decided to hand the port over to Yugoslavia.

Local authorities in Pola—which is part of the area claimed by both Italy and Yugoslavia—charged the big powers made their decision to appease Yugoslavia for permitting Trieste to remain Italian.

Powerless To Check Flight

Allied authorities were said to be powerless to check the Italians' flight, but have stopped attempts to strip the city's technical installations, industrial facilities and port equipment.

One report said that if Yugoslavia does inherit Pola, it will claim nothing more than a "dead" city.

Informal sources predicted that Byrnes may be forced to concur with French president-elect Georges Bidault's suggestion that Trieste be internationalized to avoid permanent conflict over its fate.

The momentum Byrnes gave this week's sessions was evident when general agreement was reached on Molotov's proposal that Austrian claims for the southern Tyrol be rejected on the grounds that granting them would constitute a major border rectification.

Italy's northern frontier was left at the Brenner Pass when the statesmen decided not to change any Austrian-Italian borders.

Another minor headache was removed from the agenda when the conferees voted against a proposal that compensation be granted for personal injuries to Allied Nationals in Romania.

MEAT SHORTAGE MAY CONTINUE NEXT TWO WEEKS

shortage is being eased more rapidly than the government had anticipated.

He said that some cities already have normal bread supplies although government officials earlier predicted that the bread shortage would not be eased until mid-July.

Early Harvest Helps

The official explained that the early harvest of the winter wheat crop accounted for the current relief of the bread situation in some localities.

In commenting on the meat situation, the agriculture spokesman expressed belief that cattle producers would begin sending their stocks to market after July 1, regardless of the fate of price controls.

On the other hand, the meat institute spokesman maintained that more meat would not be available unless price controls on cattle and meat are lifted on June 30.

The government official conceded that if price controls were removed, producers would rush their cattle to market more rapidly and consumers could expect additional meat sooner than if controls were maintained.

If producers flood the market with cattle in the event of the removal of price controls, the agriculture spokesman warned that the result might be a temporary drop in meat prices.

FAITH CHRISTIAN U. S. A.

United States is a great country to spend a lot of money to take care of, and raise the quality of our dumb animals. Cattle, horses and even swine are taken very good care of, and given the best attention.

According to the Reader's Digest, this is not so of our unfortunate brothers who lose their minds, even though they be human. If we continue on with our tactics of shipping our food away to foreign countries, and place them first, before the welfare of our own people, and compel mothers to stand in line to get bread for their children, we will have more of these unfortunate people to take care of.

JANE PITZER BRIDE OF DONALD W. MOORE

Neshannock Presbyterian church, New Wilmington, was the scene of the impressive double ring ceremony at 8:30 o'clock on the evening of June 21, that united in marriage Miss Jane Pitzer, daughter of Mrs. James Pitzer of New Wilmington, R. D. 2, and Donald W. Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Moore of New Wilmington R. D. 1.

Rev. W. F. Byers officiated at the candlelight ceremony solemnized before an altar setting of palms, ferns and candles. Relatives and friends filled the church auditorium to capacity.

Given in marriage by her brother, James Gordon Pitzer, the bride wore a gown of white satin and chiffon, its bodice fashioned with a round yoke of chiffon trimmed with satin applique and seed pearls and long sleeves pointed at the wrist.

The full chiffon skirt fell to a full train. Her fingertip veil fell from a halo band of satin and orange blossoms. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, gift of the groom.

She carried a powder puff bouquet of white roses and gladiolus.

Miss Helen Francis at the organ played a half hour of wedding music preceding the ceremony and the wedding march from Lehengrin as the processional. Robert Johnston sang two numbers, "Because" and "I Love You Truly."

As maid of honor, a high school classmate of the bride, Miss Nancy Wilkin of Washington, D. C., wore a gown of pink net fitted with satin bodice, three-quarter length sleeves, and a full skirt. She carried a powder puff bouquet of pink roses, pink bachelor buttons, sweetpeas and marguerites.

As bridesmaid, Miss Mary Jane Amon, cousin of the bride, of Belle-ville, was gowned similarly in blue net. She carried a bouquet like the maid of honor's except for blue bachelor buttons. Both attendants wore headbands of pink rosebuds and sweetpeas.

Little twin nephew and niece of the groom, Joe and Joanne Snyder, were ring bearer and flower girl respectively.

Robert Kaufman was best man and ushers were Wesley Moore, brother of the groom, William Pitzer, brother of the bride, William Wilson and William Miller.

Following a congratulatory period at the church, a reception was held at an inn in New Wilmington for the families and a few close friends.

Balanced Budget—Not Yet

Some recent sizable cutback in Federal appropriations running into the billions, might lead the unthinking to imagine that the Government is saving enough money to make the dream of a balanced budget in 1947 come true.

But that budget estimates took account of the fact that appropriations authorized a long time ago would not be needed. More to the point is the manner in which Congress has been stepping up some appropriations from recent estimates, tending to support Senator Taft's prediction that instead of four billions, next year's deficit may be nearer eight billions.

The strikes that have recently taken place and the new wage increases cutting down corporations' net incomes will have their effect on taxes and the Treasury's revenues. The merchant marine will require heavy additional subsidies from the Government to meet the higher wage scales.

So economy on non-essential items becomes all the more important, since the New Deal obsession for spending has by no means been abandoned in Washington. But even with rigid economy, performance of the great balancing feat by the Federal budgeteers seems still far in the future.

Slow-Thinking Drivers

As good driving is done between the ears, it does not allow for recklessness, heedlessness, absent-mindedness or just plain selfish cussedness. As a mental factor, a somewhat less familiar contribution to the accident hazard is slow thinking, according to Arthur W. Magee, state motor vehicle commissioner of New Jersey. In contrast, the fast-thinking motorist, he said, gives signals far enough in advance so that drivers behind him can tell where he is going.

But the slow-thinking motorist is less at fault in failing to signal others in time than in his lagard response to signals and other developments in traffic where quick rather than impulsive thinking is required to avoid an accident. It is largely a matter of attitude, with failure of alertness traceable to lazy indifference, stupidity, if not habitual irresponsibility. In this, reflexes play an important part and where reflexes have been slowed up by indulgence in liquor the result is sure to be a lower response to accident hazard, if not a complete let-down of personal caution.

To compensate for liquor-retarded reflexes, of which they are conscious, motorists may bring extraordinary restraint to their driving, but this obviously cannot offset fully the hazards of a situation they have contrived for themselves. The time for deliberation and "playing it safe" is when they are inclined to drink, knowing they will be driving thereafter.

Stalin And Peron

A great many people are wondering as to the significance of the treaty of trade and friendship between Soviet Russia and the Argentine. The two countries seem to be really getting together for the first time since the Communists assumed power in Russia.

Of course, if the new understanding were merely to promote trade between the two countries there would be little significant in it. But this assumption is a trifle thin. The things which Argentina has to export are principally grains, of which Russia should have a surplus. The machinery which Argentina needs she cannot get from Russia because Russia doesn't have enough for herself.

The real significance of the new pact is therefore that Stalin continues to play world power politics and Peron is trying to become a world politician on his own hook. To see that this is true we have only to think back for a few months. In San Francisco the Russians treid desperately to keep Argentina out of the picture because it is a Fascist state which was friendly with Hitler and Mussolini. The Reds and their allies almost broke up the meeting over the question of Argentina. On the other hand, Peron and his friends have always been opposed to communism.

Now we see Stalin and Peron getting together like two buddies. Power politics, not trade, seems to be the significant moving force. Stalin is taking advantage of the boner which our diplomats pulled in denouncing Peron in the midst of the Argentine campaign, and is seeking to get his head under the Pan-American tent a little further, with the hoped-for result of disrupting Pan-American harmony. Peron is seeking to make himself a world figure and at the same time play off Russia on the one hand against the United States and Britain on the other, thereby becoming the real leader in South American affairs.

Of course, it may not do to take the new treaty too seriously. We can well recall that Hitler and Stalin, representing diametrically opposed forces, made a friendly deal a few years ago. And it didn't last.

Motorists—"Take It Easy"

Danger that the coming Fourth of July holiday may be marred by traffic deaths approaching if not exceeding the pre-war toll of more than 200 street and highway fatalities was stressed today by the American Automobile Association.

Traffic deaths on the Independence Day holiday totaled 213 in 1941, it was reported. In the war years, this holiday toll was greatly reduced but July 4, 1946, threatens a return to the large pre-war casualty record. With traffic volumes above previous high marks and with many cars on the road well past the usual service life, it is of the utmost importance that drivers "Take It Easy" and observe every safety precaution, particularly during the critical holiday period.

These precautions are listed for observance in Fourth of July driving:

1. Don't weave in and out of the line of traffic. Maintain a steady driving pace, avoid spurts at high speeds, and rest when necessary to overcome fatigue.
2. Don't drive on the wrong side of the road; keep to the right particularly on curves.
3. Never pass on hills, curves, or at street intersections.
4. Get an early start both on the outgoing and return trips; plan to take your journey by easy stages.
5. Slow down at sundown; overdriving the headlights is a major cause of accidents.
6. Watch for cars coming out of side roads, particularly after dusk.
7. Above all, "Take It Easy"—avoid tension, strain and hurry in order to ensure that your vacation journey will be a round trip.

A lot of would-be builders of new homes are finding that it is much easier to get priorities in Washington than it is to get building material anywhere.

WASHINGTON CALLING

by MARQUIS CHILDS

House Committee Messing Things Up

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The booty prize of this congress goes to Kentucky's Andrew Jackson May, who happens by virtue of seniority to be chairman of the house military affairs committee. A share of the prize should go to those submissive members of the committee who follow May's lead.

What they are doing is to bring the atomic bomb as a military weapon at the very moment when the United States is seeking to convince the world that our intentions are peaceful and honorable. The timing could have scarcely been more disastrous.

Hacking Legislation

While Bernard M. Baruch was solemnly pledging this nation to a policy of cooperation in sharing atomic energy, May and the docile men who follow him were trying to hack to pieces the atomic legislation which had come from the senate. They were needing in amendments to put a military man on the civilian commission and even to give the military a kind of veto over decisions of the commission.

This comes after every responsible officer in the government—the president, Eisenhower, Baruch, Secretary Patterson, Secretary Forrestal—had urged the McMahon bill as passed unanimously by the senate. It comes after the senate committee had held exhaustive hearings on every phase of atomic energy.

In somewhat the same way May tried to snuff the draft bill. In closed sessions of his committee, he seems to have deliberately voted the proxy of representative Andrews of New York for a weak draft. If the absent Andrews had not sent a wire from the ship which he was en route to the atom bomb test, reversing this vote, a workable compromise on the draft might have been reached.

The Scripps-Howard newspapers pronounced this a legislative fraud.

There are rumors that the same kind of funny business is going on with proxy votes on atomic legislation left by absent house members. The chairman of a committee has almost unlimited power in these matters. But the house itself should take notice of these reports, since they are a reflection on the integrity of that body.

Abie men on the committee, such as representatives Thompson, Sparkman, Holtzfield and Kilday, have studied the problem of atomic energy. But they are powerless in the face of May's steamroller tactics. Blithely, the chairman waxes cracks about isotopes and neutrons and "such long-haired stuff."

May has shown a truly remarkable capacity for saying and doing the wrong thing. During the war, especially in the early phase, he issued pronouncements on sudden victory and the end of the conflict that were ludicrously wrong. These predictions did harm in that they aroused false hopes in millions of anxious hearts.

At one time in his political career, May was subservient to John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers. There are coal mines in his district. Slavishly he served the narrow, special interests of an organized minority of his constituents, opposing public power or anything that would threaten coal. Some have even suggested that this is his motive for messing up atomic energy.

Rumors persist that, behind the scenes, certain high-ranking army officers have gone counter to the expressed policy of Eisenhower and Patterson and are secretly lobbying to get the kind of military priority the senate denied them. Perhaps the most charitable explanation for May's behavior is jealousy, resentment of the fact that the May-Johnson bill was set aside for the McMahon bill.

Whatever the motive, May's handling of the legislation has been shocking. A member of the committee expressed the desire to May to serve on the joint senate-house group created under the bill to study the war over the atomic energy commission. May asked him what group he meant, obviously in ignorance that such a congressional liaison was provided in the measure.

The chairman has insisted that he was never able to get the senate bill up for a vote in his committee. The members say he never made a serious effort to call up the measure. Fortunately the house knows.

And May will too. On occasion in the past, they have failed to follow his lead. If the bill that comes out of the military affairs committee is too messed up by amendments, then the corrective lies on the floor of the house.

Action should come speedily. May and the other obfuscators are making Russia's case before the world. They are providing the needed documentation for the charge that our aim is a military domination. That kind of help to Russia at this moment imperils the whole structure of peace and pushed the world that much nearer disaster.

Kentucky is a great state which has produced some great statesmen. Surely, Kentucky can find a substitute for Andy May.

One Man's Opinion

By WALTER KIERNAN

(Distributed by International News Service)
The new chief justice finds the Supreme court in healthy condition. More muscles are in evidence than ever before.

In his first conference, Fred is reported to have urged the associate justices to be guided by the constitution and the Queensbury rules.

He is the only chief justice who ever had to end his instructions with "and may the better man emerge triumphant."

He has been chief justice since Monday and hasn't referred a bout yet but there is a good card shaping up. At least two justices are getting in some leg work with their legal work.

We really shouldn't call the chief justice "Fred." Nobody ever referred to Charles Evans Hughes as "Charlie." But this is such a human court the temptation is to err.

But Justice Vinson takes the bench with our best wishes. There is no reason why he shouldn't be to fencing what Mike Jacobs is to boxing. And like Michael's hundred-dollar customers, he asked for it.

LOOKING AT LIFE

By ERICH BRANDEIS

You have all read those many stories about divorces, and particularly about Hollywood divorces.

Many factors are being blamed, but I think the best explanation I have seen in a long time is that given by Virginia Ruth Laurel, who has been married to Stan Laurel three times and whom she recently divorced again.

When he has something he doesn't want it, she said to a reporter, "but when he hasn't got it he wants it."

Come right down to it, isn't that the main reason for most divorces? Infidelity, non-support, incompatibility, call it what you will—it's "if he has it he doesn't want it, but when he hasn't got it he wants it."

What wonderful stories I have heard about the courting days of many of my friends.

Most of the stories were told me by the women.

On the romance and the courtesies and the chivalry and the pledges and promises before marriage.

Castles in Spain, and nink coats, and automobiles and a home in the city and another in the country. Summers in Maine and winters in Florida. Diamonds by the bushel, and maids and butlers.

Then came the "I do"—and she certainly did.

She did wash and cook and darn and wash dishes.

She did stay home with the kids while he went to lodge meetings and evening "business" conferences.

And maybe she also did a lot of nagging and neglected her appearance and asked a lot of questions, most of them starting with "why didn't you" and pretty soon he didn't want what he had—and divorce was the natural outcome.

But then, after a while, came that awful loneliness of the fellow who found out that the thing you don't want when you have it is very desirable.

From Me To You

By MESEALL

People are great . . . there is nothing in the world that can take the place of people . . . now that might sound foolish to you but what we really mean is . . . how people live and what they do for their community and for other peoples of the world. There is always a few chaps in the world or in a community that do outstanding work. Sometimes their work is not recognized . . . and that is not right.

Right now there is an organization here in New Castle that is really on the ball . . . and we don't mean behind the eight ball either. This organization is made up of business men . . . some who haven't been in business so very long . . . by very long we mean less than fifty years. In other words most of the chaps are strapping good business men with years to come and go on.

The name of the organization in mind today is none other than "The Wolves Club" . . . yes sir the men who make up the local chapter are a credit to this community. The good work they have done this year alone sets an example for other clubs to follow. During the war these chaps really got out and sold WAR BONDS . . . then they took hold of various projects around town and did their bit . . . one in particular the membership campaign for the Greater New Castle Association . . . the record established in that civic work is something to talk about.

Now the Wolves Club is in another bit of help your neighbor work. They are collecting money, clothes and shoes to help the needy in Italy. A worthy cause if ever there was one. Now if you can help make this campaign a huge success instead of just a success then won't you please contact the membership of the Wolves Club . . . They have an advertisement in THE NEWS today . . . but in case you can't refer to it now just call Anthony Carbon or Angelo Frediani . . . these two men are operating the campaign, that is they are doing the brain work . . . and can tell you where or when your contribution can be picked up . . . To date they have collected about thirteen hundred dollars.

Good luck friends of the Wolves Club . . . the people of New Castle like your spirit.

Political Action; Also Inadequate

WASHINGTON, June 25. THE successful effort of the House conferees to prevent effective draft extension by eliminating the 18-year-olds was as cheap and open a piece of politics as has been seen in a long time. It was a discredit to the House as a whole, to the House members on the Conference Committee, and particularly to Chairman May, head of the House Military Affairs Committee.

FOR it was Mr. May, who, after first casting the proxy of Representative Andrews against his known wishes, refused to use it at all when Mr. Andrews in a cable from Bikini unmistakably reiterated his advocacy of the 18-year-old draft. The whole story of this draft bill fight has humiliated this country before the world. It, in effect, proclaimed that against all reason, and at a time when it was most damaging nationally, we, the strongest nation of all, deliberately had chosen to become one of the weakest.

WITH the world not yet at peace, and talk of another war too general not to notice, we have gone from a high state of readiness to an almost complete state of unreadiness. Our armed forces have dwindled until they are inadequate to fulfill our commitments abroad—a condition in sharp contrast to that of our major war allies. As things stand now, the draft has been extended in such form as to be just short of disastrous. Its inadequacy is clear, but nothing can be done about it.

Clearly, the speed with which we have deteriorated militarily decreases the effectiveness of our world leadership. Inevitably, the power of the United States in the United Nations has diminished. The influence of our representatives in all international groups lessened and our whole foreign policy endeavored. It ought not to be this way—but that is the way it is. Moral strength and unselfish purpose ought to be sufficient equipment for world leadership but it isn't and every practical man knows it.

THE REFUSAL of the House to reverse itself was bad in other ways, too. It repudiated not only the President and his chief of staff, General Eisenhower, but every detached and competent authority in the country. It played into the hands of the radical labor leaders and the Communist party, whose aim is to prevent a strong foreign policy. The fact is that these elements offered the only organized opposition to adequate draft extension and expansion.

THE attitude of the House—and especially the attitude of the House conferees—can be explained solely on the ground of politics. This is an election year, and every member first has to be re-nominated and then re-elected. In every district there are a certain number of parents naturally reluctant to the drafting of their sons. Pressure came from these—particularly from the mothers. Added to the organized labor groups—the leaders of which behaved about the draft as though it were a rattlesnake, and this was enough to alarm a lot of bunny-blooded representatives to the point where they were willing to push aside all the great national questions involved and (the Democrats) array themselves against their own President and party Administration.

IT was an exceedingly unedifying exhibition. Members of Congress knew that a majority of the people favored the stand of Mr. Truman and General Eisenhower. They knew the people believed them when they said it was important to have an adequate bill. But they knew also that the majority is forgetful, unorganized and unresentful; while those who oppose are organized, remembering and punitive. In brief, the emancipation of the measure was political and ignoble. That the opposition was able to nullify the weight of the President and his military advisers when they were so clearly right does not speak well for our system. The best that can be said of this bill is that it is better than nothing.

LITTLE GIRL HABIT

She is lovely now, and she Even lovelier to look at. Will become.

But one fault distresses me: She is almost five, and she Sucks her thumb!

Though to stop her, mother tries, And I frequently advise Chewing gum.

Otherwise as good as gold, Little Ellen I behold Sucks her thumb!

Down that pretty, little mouth Will her thumb be headed south— Towards her "tummy". Soon or late it will occur, All who call say: "Look at her Suck her thumb!"

Of the habits children get, Which are viewed with deep regret, Worse are some. This one lasts so short a while That I watch her with a smile Suck her thumb.

The Parent Problem

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

AFTER THE BABY ARRIVED

At last, the baby has arrived. Needless to say, you are very happy. Mother, and you very clearly. Dad, You, Father, receive now less attention from the mother than you were accustomed to receive, perhaps. You must go off to work, whereas she can be with the child all day. There inevitably lurks some jealousy in your breast.

Nevertheless, you are going to co-operate with the mother in cultivating regular habits in this baby, guided by the clock. You are not going to urge her to take him up to feed him at any other time, just because he cries. Let the baby stay where he is put and don't let your pride and vanity make you grab him up to show your friends.

Bath Or Eating Time. Anyone who wants to see him should appear when he is being bathed or taken up for food. As soon as he begins to notice persons, let no one but the mother be close by when he is taking food, least he be disturbed and learn to dawdle during eating. Fortunately if he is breast-fed, the mother should avoid a rocker while she nurses him.

Feeding ended, she tucks him away gently, not too heavily covered in a well-ventilated room with drawn shades. Allow no one to bounce him about or teeter him following his meal, or rarely at any other time. Once he is in bed, be not more quiet than usual.

Let him early grow accustomed to the regular noises. If he fusses very long, turn him over, making sure his clothes do not hamper him, but do not take him up except, perhaps, to "burp" him. No arms can be so comfortable.

If, per adventure, you have spoiled the baby by taking him up when he cries, he will grow worse and worse until you, father and mother, solemnly agree to correct the bad habit you have taught, by not taking him up.

The World and the Mud Puddles

A TROUBLE MAKER

Walter P. Reuther, newly elected president of the United Automobile Workers Union, issues an ultimatum to Congress that if the DFA is scrapped or hamstringed he will abrogate all existing contracts.

The U. A. W. leader bases his declaration on the theory that removal or easing of price controls will nullify the substantial wage increases won by the Union. Assuming that price increases might result, the responsibility goes back directly to the added cost of production growing out of wage advances. Mr. Reuther, in spite of his insistence that wages must be increased without any increase in prices, knows that the idea is fallacious, as a matter of fact, he abandoned this contention during the early period of the big motors strike. The administration officially repudiated it by sanctioning higher steel prices to compensate for higher wages.

The greatest possible impetus that could be given to inflation would be the halting of production by strikes and the granting of still higher wages to offset higher prices. Mr. Reuther himself was largely instrumental in starting the inflationary spiral. Now that he sees it as a threat of higher living costs to his Union membership, he pretends to tell Congress what to do. It is time that Congress put him in his place, as it finally has put Perillo.

Safety Rules For Swimmers

Everyone who likes to go near or in the water should be familiar with a few simple rules, warns the National Safety Council.

Don't go into the water until about one hour after eating. Don't go into deep water if you cannot swim.

Don't molest others who you know cannot swim. Always swim with someone else nearby. Put off if there is a crowd.

Know and practice artificial respiration regularly during the summer months. In the event of a drowning—keep yourself cool and the patient warm. Immediately call for a doctor.

Remember water flooding the nose may run into the sinuses and cause inflammation. When diving or swimming with the face submerged, a good practice is to exhale bubbles of air constantly, and slowly from the nostrils. This prevents water running back into your nose and sinuses.

Mayor Lawrence Faction In Saddle

Reorganization Of Democratic State Committee Gives Insight Into Control

OTHER NEWS OF STATE AFFAIRS

HARRISBURG, June 25.—(INS)—The reorganization of the 113-member Democratic State committee at Gettysburg was a cut-and-dried affair. The meeting was marked by the re-election of Chairman J. Warren Mickle, of Harrisburg. Mickle's continuance in power indicated that the faction of the party headed by Mayor David L. Lawrence, of Pittsburgh, National committeeman, retained the upper hand in the organization.

Leaders contended that one disappointing feature of the meeting was the small crowd, variously estimated at 500 persons, who attended notification ceremonies for Col. John S. Rice, nominee for governor, on the Gettysburg college athletic field. As was expected, Rice delivered a stinging attack on Gov. Edward Martin's administration. Rice's speech has been hailed by Democratic chieftains as a "masterpiece." He charged that the administration has "a frightful record of waste, mismanagement, indifference, of sordid traffic in special privileges, of callous regard for public need."

State Insurance Commissioner Gregg L. Neel is expected to resign as secretary of the Republican State committee before fall campaigning gets underway. Considerable opposition to his re-election was in evidence during the committee's reorganization June 8 in Philadelphia. Strong sentiment was displayed behind the scenes for Roger Rowland, of New Castle, Lawrence county chairman and former secretary of property and supplies, and George I. Bloom, of Washington, Secretary to Gov. Edward Martin. Rowland is a lieutenant of Joseph R. Grundy, of Bristol, GOP elder.

The inactivity of the young Republicans has been attributed to the so-called animosity of M. Harvey Taylor, GOP state chairman. The young Republicans organized in March after suspending activities during the war, but no effort has been made by officials to formulate a policy or endorse candidates for general elections. Some of the young Republicans have expressed the belief that their President Frank Hilton, of Womelsdorf, was playing ball too closely with GOP leaders. The group of young party members can remain free of party dictation since they have their own charter.

Records on file in Gov. Edward Martin's office disclosed that between November, 1887, and February, 1915, a total of 279 men were hanged for crimes in Pennsylvania. Since February 23, 1915, when the first man was electrocuted in the commonwealth, a total of 288 men and women have died in the electric chair. One woman, Irene Schroeder, was electrocuted February 23, 1931. She was charged with the murder of Corp. Brady Paul, of the State Highway patrol, on a road near New Castle, between New Castle and Butler.

Henry A. Morris, the Mahanoy City piano tuner and father of 12 children who unsuccessfully opposed Col. John S. Rice, of Gettysburg, for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the primary election, has reminded party chieftains that they should "put their own house in order" before appealing to insurgent Republican voters. Morris took issue with Rice for appealing for the support of insurgent John U. Shroyer, defeated candidate for the GOP gubernatorial nomination. "There's a lot of Independent Democrats who also vote," Morris said. He claimed that final tabulations of the primary election will show that he polled 135,000 votes.

Army Induction Centers Are Lonely

PITTSBURGH, June 25.—(INS)—The army induction centers in western Pennsylvania are pretty lonely places these days.

The drafting of men for the armed services has fallen off to a mere trickle, according to Maj. L. A. Florio, commanding officer of the Pittsburgh induction district.

Since May 15, Maj. Florio said only 230 men have been processed in the 28 western Pennsylvania counties. Of this number, 84 have been rejected because of physical defects, and two have been delayed pending further status investigations.

Even with the passing of the new draft bill, the board members forecast no upswing in inductions. One board member pointed out that most of the 19-year-olds already were in service, having been drafted when they were 18.

CHILDREN HAVE READING CLUB AT PUBLIC LIBRARY

Young book-lovers are being encouraged in their pastime during the summer months by a reading club organized at the Free Public Library.

When the children have read ten books, they get booklets with their names printed on the inside and the books listed on the outside. Children who started to read last summer but fell short of the goal may complete their list this summer and obtain their booklets, chief librarian Alice Sterling said.

great deal of crying all in one spell or so many free you and them from annoyance in the future.

Consult Physician

Provided you have rarely taken him up when he cried, and he persists in crying for long periods after being put to bed, consult your physician; likewise, if he often wakes up early before feeding times. Seek medical advice early, also, about supplementing the breast food with vegetables and other diet, or in case of bottle-feeding, about the proper formula.

Training Schools Big Factor Aiding Young Delinquents

Learning Of Work Skills Helps
Errant Youths Find Place
In Society

HARRISBURG, June 25.—(INS)—The value of training schools in restoring juvenile delinquents to useful citizens has been emphasized by Dr. E. Preston Sharp, director of the welfare department's bureau of community work.

He compiled a report outlining methods for securing the most efficient operation of institutions for the training of young delinquents.

Sharp pointed out there were 23 institutions in the state designed for the rehabilitation of errant youths including the Pennsylvania Training School at Morgantown and state-aided establishments at Glen Mills and Sleighton farms in Delaware county.

"The aim of any institution for juvenile delinquents is first to temporarily remove the child from society, and second, to exercise every means possible to help him become a well adjusted, constructive citizen," the report stated.

"This means training in discipline and work skills adequate to permit him to earn his livelihood and to take his proper place in the community as a law-abiding citizen," it was added.

Sharp's report pointed out the advantages offered in training schools for delinquent children, including "democratic settings" which remove caste lines which result from wealth or race.

"No institution for delinquent children can maintain a constructive program unless the employees are sincere, interested, and like to work with children," the report emphasized.

"Children learn behavior from adults. Children can evaluate adults more accurately than adults can evaluate themselves. They must see in the persons of the employees the best possible patterns of American citizens in order that their future lives will be constructive."

Garden Notes

By Lewis C. Dayton,
County Agent

Sow for late-season crops beans, beets, carrots, cress, cucumbers, rutabaga, turnips, Chinese cabbage, kale and kohlrabi. Set out plants of late cabbage, celery, endive and Brussels sprouts.

Here are 12 easy perennials to sow now: anchusa, aquilegia, aubretia, centaurea, coreopsis, delphinium, gillardia, lupines, lychnis and pentstemon, pyrethrum and viola.

The biennials to sow at this time are hollyhock, foxglove and sweet william. Pansies can wait for August sowing.

Feed tomatoes with a general fertilizer mixed with a little soil placing it three or four inches away from the stems so the vines will not be over-stimulated.

Cucumber beetles which eat leaves of cucumbers, melons and squash can be controlled with rotenone or pyrethrum dusts, repeated weekly.

Unless you are saving them for seed, don't let peonies set seed pods. Work in a dust of general fertilizer, hoe and water to help plants form new eyes for future blooming.

ATOMIC ENERGY WRITES DOOM OF ALL HUMAN RACE

GRINNELL, Ia., June 25.—(INS)—Development of atomic energy has "written real doom across the sky for the human race," according to Rev. Douglas Norton, New York minister, and secretary of the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches.

Dr. Horton made the assertion as he summarized a ministers' and laymen's forum on the theological implication of atomic energy. He said:

"Individuals may be submerged in the kind of world corporate structure we are building up. It seems clear, however, that we must have some sort of a world structure to prevent growth of a minority which would be inimical to the total good."

Rev. Fred S. Buschmeyer of Washington, D. C., said "war is never just or fair." He declared atomic war simply "heightens the sense of the horror and brutality of warfare."

Doolittle Says Weather Greatest Aviation Problem

POTSDAM, N. Y., June 25.—(INS)—Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle, aviation hero of two wars, said Monday that the inability to predict and combat weather is the greatest deterrent to the safety and reliability of aviation.

Gen. Doolittle told the graduation class at the Clarkson College of Technology that "in air operations in both the European and the Pacific theaters of war, weather was the number one enemy."

He said: "Pilotless, wingless, gyro-stabilized, rocket propelled air weapons have already achieved speeds of around 500 miles per hour and we may anticipate that the air weapons of the future will also be radio controlled and radar directed."

"They will be capable of traveling great distance at supersonic speeds, in the stratosphere, and will probably have an atomic war head and may even employ atomic energy as a propulsive force. This is tomorrow's military problem."

"The employment of such air carriers for commercial air transport is day after tomorrow's problem. Today's primary problem is increasing the safety and reliability of conventional aircraft. Reliability, in general, means ability to adhere to schedule."

New Speed Record Made By Jet Plane

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—(INS)—A P-80 Shooting Star on Monday established a speed record of three minutes and ten seconds for a flight between Wilmington, Del., and Philadelphia. The trip takes 45 minutes by train.

The jet-powered ship flashed over City Hall in Philadelphia, the timing-point of the run, at 12:10:10 p. m. EDT, covering the thirty miles from Wilmington at a speed approaching 600 miles per hour.

Pilot of the P-80 was First Lieut. Leonard B. Constant, of Grafton, Mass., a test pilot at the Dover, Del., air field.

The speed-run was made in connection with the fourth of July celebration to be held by the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

When Constant's plane reached Philadelphia, the pilot established radio contact with army officials stationed atop the Philadelphia Saving Fund Society building.

Hundreds of noon shoppers and office-workers were startled by the screech of the jet—but they were unable to see the plane because the ship was far distant before the sound reached street level. The P-80 made three passes over the city.

Ticket Magnate Leaves Wealth To Help Ailing

NORRISTOWN, June 25.—(INS)—

The late Walter E. Hering, founder of the Globe Ticket Co., largest ticket printing business in the world, made a million dollars—and knew how to spend it even after his death.

Some two years before he died, Hering advertised for suggestions on how to leave his wealth. He received about 500 proposals for sharing his fortune, but none impressed him.

His will, probated recently in Norristown, showed that the ultimate solution was his own, and will be of benefit to countless sick persons.

Trustees of the million dollar estate said $27,000 will be spent on research and experiments at Hahnemann Medical college and hospital to re-prove homoeopathy as a healing art and other beneficiaries have been the care of hundreds of convalescents, and to diabetes and general encouragement of homoeopathic science.

The deed authorizes trustees of the Walter E. Hering Foundation to apply three-fourths of the income for the benefit of any homoeopathic institution, giving preference always to the needs of Hahnemann.

The other fourth share is payable in equal parts to the University of Pennsylvania as a student fund, to the University Museum and to increase salaries or provide pensions for the university faculty.

When council met Monday in city hall, a bill was introduced by City Property Director Joseph D. Alexander, which provides that the city enter into an agreement, to pay $2,675, to the Lawrence County Institution district which already has contracted for a water line to course from the Princeton road to the County Welfare home.

The $2,675 will be the city's share of providing water for Sylvan Heights convalescent and course. The city will also pay a share of electric current necessary to pump the water to the roof course. The measure was sent to committee for consideration.

City Bureau of Building has issued construction permits, as follows: George Gronman, frame dwelling and garage at 1039 Rose avenue, estimated cost $5,700 and Andy S. Tomaski, one-story concrete block garage at 1106 Summit street, estimated cost $200.

When council convened Monday there was ordered paid to McBride

Shannon for the month of June, $368.92, to cover the cost of carrying the city's compensation for employees. Council approved Monday a requisition for the purchase of cable for the city electric department, the cost of which is $485.

CONGRESS SESSION

WILL END IN JULY

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(INS)—House Speaker Rayburn (D) Tex., told reporters that he looks for adjournment of congress between July 17 and 21.

Rayburn made his statement after conferring at the White House with other members of the president's congressional "big four".

Jet Airplanes Make Swiftest Air Mail Flight

Two P-80 Planes Make Record Run From Schenectady To Three Other Cities

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., June 25.—(INS)—The fastest air mail delivery in the history of the United States was accomplished Saturday when two P-80 jet propelled planes carried 1,500 air mail letters from Schenectady to Washington, Chicago and Dayton, O.

It was the first time that jet planes were used in air mail service. High officials of the federal government were at the Schenectady airport when the jet planes took off for their destination. A letter sent to President Truman, signed by W. Stuart Symington, assistant secretary of war for air, read in part:

"The United States mail was flown in a jet-propelled aircraft today for the first time. This letter, which you have just received, was loaded into a P-80 Shooting Star a little more than an hour ago in Schenectady, N. Y., and was carried to Washington at a speed above 500 miles per hour."

A letter to Orville Wright at Dayton, O., who flew the first airplane, was signed by Charles E. Wilson, president of the General Electric company, which has been conducting the mammoth two-day aerial show here.

One Hour, Five Minutes

The letter reaching Dayton one hour and five minutes after its take off here, read:

"The manner in which this letter is being sent to you dramatizes the tremendous progress which has been made in aviation since the many memorable events connected with your name. It came to you in a P-80 Shooting Star, a jet-propelled fighter which flew to Dayton at more than 500 miles an hour."

A third letter, to Mayor Kelly, was written by Lt. Gen. Nathan F. Twining, commanding general of the air materiel command, AAF, it said.

"This air mail delivery by jet plane was made by the army air forces in conjunction with the General Electric air research demonstration at Schenectady, a preview to the future—a future which needs civilian support, not only for commercial transport, but more to the point, for the national security."

Say 38 Billion Ton-Miles Moved By Rail In May

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(INS)—The Association of American Railroads announced that Class I railroads handled 38 billion ton-miles of freight traffic during May.

The freight traffic volume, 41 per cent under the total for May, 1945, was announced in the wake of the granting of a three to six per cent freight rate increase to the nation's railroads by the Interstate Commerce commission.

The freight rate increase, expected to add about 90 million dollars annually to the railroad gross revenue, was authorized by the ICC as an emergency measure pending action on the carriers' request for a 25 per cent boost.

However, the ICC rejected the carriers' request to make permanent the 10 per cent passenger fare increase granted in January, 1942. This provision, which expires six months after the war officially ends, will be considered at a later commission hearing.

The commission also authorized a five per cent increase in freight rates for eastern railroads to give them financial parity with other carriers. These rates, however, do not apply to anthracite, bituminous coal, lignite and iron ore.

The six per cent increase was authorized for all commodities, except agricultural products, livestock and its products, and certain mining products, which were granted a three per cent hike.

"The Gypsy Rover" Operetta Presented

Delta Gamma Sigma Of St. Mary's Give Final Show Of Musical Extravaganza To Crowd

"The Gypsy Rover" was presented Monday evening for the second time, and again as in previous operettas the Delta Gamma Sigma, of St. Mary's, have scored a hit. The first presentation was Sunday evening.

Many gay tunes were in this musical extravaganza, and the story itself was charming. Rob, the Gypsy Rover, who really was Sir Gilbert Howe, lived incognito with a band of gypsies near London. Lady Constance of London, came upon the gypsy camp while on a stroll, and immediately fell in love with the gypsy.

Aghast at her impudence, Lady Constance's family decided that she should marry at once the elderly Lord Craven, of a distinguished London family. But Constance manages to escape the marriage, and still thinks about her gypsy lover. In the meantime, the Gypsy Rover's foster parents reveal the truth to him about his family, and certain papers verify the fact that he is really the Sir Gilbert Howe of London who had disappeared for quite some time.

Rob or Sir Gilbert then goes to London, where he claims Lady Constance as his bride, and the story ended as they do in all fairy stories, "they lived happily ever after."

Francis Morrissey was the Gypsy Rover, and Cathleen Blake was Lady Constance. They were assisted by other members of the cast: Mary Jones, Althea Kullish, William Gilroy, Philip Clark, William Nelson, Thomas Martin, Marguerite Murphy, Robert Cunningham, Clara Taylor, Mildred Starnad, Mildred Donegan, Leo Maher, Anna B. Hagan, Mary Ann Bowen and Paul Doran.

The gypsy children were: Dolores Hruska, Charlotte Hannon, Mary Lou Flynn, Beverly Nader, John Brogan, Phyllis Bunnell, Patricia Pee, Clara Bogdziewicz, John Cunningham, and Joseph Heaney. Dancers: Margaret Rowbottom, Helen Mangine, Blanche Baker, Rose Marie Palmer, Rose Mary Goodrich, Mary Ann Quinn.

Katherine Hartsuff gave the dance solo and a dance novelty number by Little Marie Cresswell. Robert Kelsch played his mandolin during the show and Helen Mangine played her violin.

During intermission, Miss Rosena McGunk and Dolores O'Leary were given bouquets of flowers for their direction and supervision of scenery and music. Katherine Hartsuff was the dance director.

Rev. Fr. Francis King was the director of the entire production, and is given due credit for the excellent show presented by the Delta Gamma Sigma.

Rare Illness For Boy Bitten By Wild Rabbit

Two-Year-Old Thought To Have Contracted Tularemia (Rabbit Fever) From Bite

PITTSBURGH, June 25.—(INS)—Doctors were attempting today to diagnose the illness of two-year-old Pat Miller, who was bitten by a wild rabbit 17 days ago.

Police said the rabbit also on two other Pittsburgh youngsters—Richard Jeffery, five, and his brother, Edward, 14. Neither of the latter two has suffered any ill effects, according to the doctors.

The rabbit was captured in the woods by two youngsters and sold to Robert Katavitch, nine, for ten cents. Bobby took the rabbit home and put it in a pen with two other tame rabbits.

That night, Little Pat, a cousin of Bobby, tried to feed the wild rabbit some lettuce and was bitten on the finger. The wound was cauterized and Pat's mother was told to watch both the child and the rabbit.

At the end of ten days, Pat was fine but the wild rabbit had killed the two tame ones. Bobby's mother ordered him to return the rabbit to the woods.

The next day Young Jeffery found the animal and when he carried it home, the rabbit bit him on the hand and cheek. Anne Wier, Jeffery's older brother decided to return the rabbit to the woods, he was bitten on the hand.

Meantime, Pat became violently ill. He refused to eat for two days and on Sunday his lips swelled and he contracted a fever, according to his mother.

Physicians said rabies in rabbits is extremely rare and it was possible that Young Pat's infection might have resulted from tularemia (rabbit fever), a disease common among wild rabbits.

Surveying Runways At New Airport

One runway has already been surveyed and the second and third are to be surveyed before the week is ended, according to Frank J. Farone, owner of the 85-acre site on the Ellwood-New Castle road, which is to be developed into Port Shenango.

Mr. Farone has just been granted permission by the Pennsylvania State Aeronautics commission at Harrisburg to develop the site into an airport.

The runways that are soon to be laid are 300 feet wide and 1300, 2200 and 2700 feet long, respectively. As soon as engineers finish the surveying, the runways will be pointed.

Charge Officer With Assault And Battery

Vic Cubellis, serving as a temporary policeman for the city, was arrested on a charge of assault and battery Monday, an information charging the offense having been sworn to by Angelo Casacchia, night club proprietor of Nesbannock avenue. Cubellis denied the allegations, gave bond and will receive a hearing before Alderman Claude Mantz, Thursday.

The arrest was an aftermath of an alleged occurrence at 1 a. m. Sunday in front of Casacchia's night club.

An argument arose between Cubellis and Casacchia and during a scuffle Herman Reinhart, an employee of Casacchia arrested his night stick from Cubellis. However, Cubellis arrested Casacchia, Reinhart and a man who gave his name as William Eakin, but whose address police did not take.

Mayor John F. Haven fined Casacchia $50, Reinhart $10, and claimed "Eakin" $10 bail when he failed to appear for a hearing.

Postwar Studebaker on Display Here

The much-discussed 1947 Studebaker, described as "the first genuine postwar automobile," is now on display in the Showrooms of Barnes-Snyder Motor Co., 122 N. Mercer St., New Castle, Pa. Lower and wider body, re-engineered weight distribution that adds immeasurably to riding safety and comfort, mechanical advances that include self-adjusting brakes and stronger, box-section frames are among the many highlights. Pictured above is the four-door Champion sedan. The Barnes-Snyder Showroom will be open tonight, Wednesday and Thursday evenings until 9:30 p. m.

New Studebakers Now Being Shown By Barnes-Snyder

First Truly Post-War Autos In Smart New Designs To Be Seen At Local Agency

First of the automobile industry's long-awaited 1947 models are on display today. The cars are the new Studebakers and can be seen at the Barnes-Snyder Motor company, 122 North Mercer street.

Lower, wider and more fully streamlined than any previous automotive design, the cars bear the unmistakable stamp of the "true post-war products" both in beauty and performance.

"This car could not have been built before the war," said Wayne Snyder of the local agency, "progress in manufacturing and engineering have given us greater safety, comfort, and operating efficiency than our pre-war knowledge could have made possible. It is not only the first genuine post-war automobile, but a car that sets the style for the entire industry."

New Engineering

Engineering revamping has touched every part of the chassis and body. Fenders have been absorbed into the body and an application of "curved glass" gives the new autos a smart flow of line. Windshields and windows have been broadened and wind resistance has been lowered, adding to the top speed.

Other improvements include a lower body (slightly over five feet in height), lowering of the car floor with a redistribution of weight, and new self-adjusting brakes. A non-glare, black light instrument panel, modelled after that of fighter aircraft, is another feature. The cars have richly finished interiors, new door handles of the pull-to-type, and a pistol-grip parking brake in the center of the dash.

Convertibles, two and four-door sedans, business coupes and the new five-passenger coupe will be available in the 1947 "Champion" and "Commander" lines. Including the "Deluxe" and "Regal Deluxe" series, the cars are offered in 21 bodies.

Nearly 200,000 military trucks were built by the U. S. for the use of the Red Army in World War II.

Charges Illegal Bonuses Paid To Secure New Cars

NEW YORK, June 25.—(INS)—Regional OPA enforcement Attorney Callman Gottesman complained today that automobile buyers squawk when over-charged for second-hand jalopies but willingly pay illegal "bonuses" when purchasing new cars.

Declaring that many used car dealers have been fined and jailed for overcharging, he said not one new car agent has been convicted in New York although unlawful "bonus" demands have risen from $200 last autumn to about $500 now.

Wild Mustard New Enemy Of County Farmers

Yellow Fields Show Evidence Of Spread—County Agent Discusses Situation

Farmers of Lawrence county have been neglecting the field cress and wild mustard on their lands, as is evident by the yellow coloring caused by the blossoms in their fields.

Many farmers will have a poor hay crop this year because they let the cress to get a good stand and it has taken up the needed moisture and plant food.

After the hay is cut and cured the stock will not eat the cress and other weeds that have replaced the hay and tends toward considerable waste.

Many farmers are trying grass silage as a control, because they can cut the hay before the cress seeds are ripened. This helps to a large extent to control the plant.

Wild mustard in the oat fields will greatly reduce the yield this year for many fields are yellow with the blossoms. It multiplies rapidly and crowds out the oats.

In a statement today, L. C. Dayton of the Farm Extension Office, said that mustard seed may lay dormant for several years before it will germinate. This makes it hard to control. A system for control that has had success in other areas, but hasn't been tried locally, is a chemical spray or dust. This is done while the plants are in the young stage, to prevent damage to the oats and kills the mustard before it has a good growth.

As a control method, one farmer took his family into the field and pulled out the mustard a stocks at a time. Although hard work, it is still the best weed control measure known.

Discover Attempt Made To Enter Jewelry Store

Burglars between 2:43 a. m. and 6:40 a. m. today attempted to enter the Meek jewelry store, East Washington street, which was looted of approximately $10,000 worth of jewelry last Christmas time. The attempt was discovered by Patrolman Trevor Williams.

Williams reported to police headquarters at 6:40 a. m. that while inspecting the rear door he discovered an attempt had been made to pry it open. The imprints of a bar were discernible.

The patrolman told headquarters that he inspected the rear door at 11:55 p. m. and again at 2:40 a. m., but at 6:40 a. m. found an attempted entrance had been made.

The place was burglarized through the rear Christmas night.

Small Boy Hurt In Sampson Street

Thomas Taylor, age six, of 913 Porter street, was bruised about the elbows, head and back when he reportedly ran in front of a truck operated by Michael Pandice, 804 Harbor street, in Sampson street near McCleary avenue, at 6:55 p. m. Monday, according to Pandice's report to police.

According to the truck driver, the boy was running across the street. His father shouted a warning. The little fellow stopped in front of the truck and was struck, the driver reported.

He is in the Jameson Memorial hospital, where he was taken by the driver, but is not seriously hurt.

Claims Russia Barring Reports Of UNRRA Relief

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(INS)—President Truman reported to congress Monday that Moscow has refused to relax censorship of correspondents to report on UNRRA relief distribution in the two autonomous Soviet republics of the Ukraine and White Russia.

The president, in a letter to House Speaker Rayburn (D. Tex.), said, however, that Moscow has made arrangements for accredited observers of the UNRRA organization to observe distribution of supplies there.

President Truman's letter was written in accordance with provisions of the revised UNRRA law which called upon him to make efforts for the free and uncensored reporting by newsmen and radio commentators to report on the distribution and utilization of UNRRA supplies and services.

In All Other Countries
The chief executive reported that "satisfactory" arrangements had been made for the observance of relief distributions in all countries of Europe excepting only the two Soviet republics.

Text of Mr. Truman's letter to Rayburn follows:

"To the speaker of the house:
"In accordance with the recommendation in paragraph B of public law 262, 79th congress, I have, through appropriate channels, taken steps to advise countries receiving UNRRA assistance of the desire of the United States government that the admission to those countries of properly accredited members of the American press and radio be facilitated in order that they might be permitted to report without censorship on the utilization and distribution of UNRRA supplies and services.

Soviet Denies Right

"I am advised that satisfactory arrangements are in effect to permit American press and radio representatives to report without censorship on the UNRRA programs in all UNRRA receiving countries except the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. There is attached a translation of a communication dated March 12, 1946, to the secretary of state from the charge d'affaires of the USSR with reference to the situation in that country, which in effect states that the censorship rules enforced for all correspondents in the Soviet Union will be applied to correspondents desiring to report on the utilization and distribution of UNRRA supplies.

"I am also advised that accredited representatives of UNRRA have been given necessary facilities for observing and reporting on the distribution of UNRRA supplies in all receiving countries including Ukraine and Byelo Russia, Soviet Socialist Republics, and have submitted expenses and detailed reports."

Traffic Death Rate Alarming

Assistant Director Of Highway Safety In Pennsylvania Asks Rotary's Help

COURTESY ON HIGHWAYS URGED

Traffic deaths are mounting by leaps and bounds. George S. Lowe, assistant director of Highway Safety in Pennsylvania told Rotarians at their noon luncheon meeting in The Castleton, Monday, and yet few people seem concerned about it until it strikes home to them.

With 15 per cent fewer automobiles on the highways of the nation, the automobile death rate during the first four months of this year was within 110 of the national total for the entire year of 1941. In other words, 10,770 persons have been killed in traffic accidents in the United States up to May 1, while the 1941 total was only 10,880.

In 1937, when the Morris Castle burned off the coast of New Jersey, with a ghastly toll of death, people were appalled. Yet during that same year, 3,000 people were killed in highway accidents in a month's time throughout the nation with scarcely any mention being made of the fact.

Stresses E's of Safety

Mr. Lowe stressed three E's of highway safety, namely: engineering, enforcement of the motor laws, and education. In spite of the fact that engineers are doing all they can to build highway safety people who pass an examination to drive an automobile at a speed of 20 miles per hour, get out on super highways of the nation, where they step up to 60 and 70 miles per hour, and they do not know how to drive that fast. The result is an ever-increasing toll of tragedies.

Pennsylvania has splendid enforcement officers, both locally and throughout the state, but people are more concerned about the letter of the law than they are the spirit of the law. Drivers should have their cars under control at all times, he asserted.

Too many people who brag about safe driving records over a period of years become just a little careless and possess a false sense of security. They fail to realize that as they grow older, their reactions become slower and they are lured into accidents, because they think it cannot happen to them.

Urges Educational Effort

In regard to education, he urged that the Rotary Club do its share in promoting the teaching of safety in the schools which he asserted will bring results later on, in making the younger generation conscious of safety. He urged his hearers to live safety and talk safety every day. While this is not the answer to the problem of highway safety, it is an approach to it, he stated.

He urged that people be as courteous on the highways as they are in every other human relation, and then only will there be a decrease in accidents and fatalities.

There were a number of guests present, including among whom were H. D. Dawning, production controller; and Ed. Riney, chief production engineer of the Glazer Metals Company, Ltd. of Middlesex, Eng., guest of Al Technum, export manager of the Johnson Bronze Company. Mr. Riney, asked to speak on conditions in England, stated that today food is scarcer than it was during the war. People are rationed, setting around twenty-five cents worth of meat, eight ounces of sugar, three ounces of fat, such as margarine or butter, and two ounces of tea per week.

When the dried eggs, which were received from this country were cut off on the other side, it presented a real problem to the housewife who had depended on dried eggs in making many dishes.

TO CUT MELON

The county, institution district, city and school district will cut a $36,320.55 melon in the near future. On Monday morning, County Controller Andrew M. Dadds presented a detailed list of the properties held by the county in the city for delinquent tax sales, the cents collected and the distribution to the various taxing bodies.

Of the $36,320.55, which represents the sale of 133 properties in the city, $3203.58 is for maintenance cost, $2046.89 for collection costs already deducted, $3371.54 for collection costs to be deducted, $3735 to the county, $2015.43 to the institution district, $16,157.95 to the school district and $3790.16 to the city.

The commissioners claim the city has some moneys on hand representing rents collected and that the city owes the county its share. The commissioners will hold up the city check until the county's share of money held by the city is paid. The distribution follows the recent order of court, but has to be approved by the various taxing bodies. The commissioners approved it Monday.

RAISE YOU FIVE

The sale of a small piece of property in Union township on Monday by the commissioners resulted in something like a poker game with each player raising five. The bidding started at $75 and by five dollar raises finally went to $170 at which price it was knocked down.

RECOMMENDS FREEZE

John W. Pattison, chief assessor has recommended to the commissioners that the assessments for 1947 be frozen at the level of 1946, due to the fact that the assessments for 1946 are just now being closed. No action has been taken as yet upon the proposal.

Probe Franklin Woman's Death

Body Of Young Woman Is Found Near Pier Of Bridge In Franklin

FRANKLIN, June 24.—The body of 21-year-old Ruth Seitzmire was found today near the pier of the eight street bridge spanning the Allegheny river. Police and county authorities launched an investigation to learn if her death was due to suicide or foul play.

Her empty pocketbook, which her husband said contained $15, was found in a doorway of the Venango County Court House by Custodian Ben Miller. The woman's husband, William Seitzmire said she had the money in her pocketbook when he last saw her shortly before midnight when he left a club on Thirteenth street.

Her watch, three rings and earrings were found by a waitress on her way to work. The jewelry was on the sidewalk of the Washington bridge which spans French creek and is half a mile from the Court House.

A sailor of New York City discovered the body as he passed over the bridge.

Dr. P. E. Cunningham, deputy coroner, said he would not rule on the case until the body had been thoroughly examined.

Croton Playground Has On Wheels Show

Monday afternoon, boys and girls from the Croton area went all out for the "on wheels" show that was put on at the Croton playground under the supervision of Violette Metta, director of the playground.

The judges had a difficult time deciding which entry in the show was the most outstanding, but after some decision, they came forth with these results: first prize, largest decorated bicycle, Betty Ezzo and Rosemary Piroletti; second prize, smallest toy dog on wheels, Billy Cook; third prize, most dilapidated army truck on wheels, Nick Nemo.

Honorable mention, prettiest decorated buggy, Dorothy Pascarella; funniest decorated buggy, Betty Cimin; prettiest decorated tricycle, Valjean; prettiest decorated scooter, Betty Micco; smallest decorated buggy, Charlene Malley.

Judges of the prize winners were Mrs. Jerry Malley, Mrs. Frank Pia, while the girls from the playground who were honorable mention judges, were Marlene Malisia, Anna Micco, and Dolly Stone.

NORRISTOWN.—Two "teen age" boys apparently intended to have a bang-up time. They stole 6,000 .22 calibre bullets from a carnival.

offers "the drive that GM builds"

People who know their automobiles have come to have a double respect for the name Oldsmobile. First, because it belongs to the oldest manufacturer in the business. It stands for nearly half a century of fine craftsmanship... advanced engineering... and leadership in quality and style.

Secondly, because the Oldsmobile name also symbolizes a youthful, pioneering spirit—a forward-looking attitude that's evident in every ultra-modern line of today's new Oldsmobile cars. Style leaders in more ways than one—these smartly tailored motor cars set a new style in postwar driving. It's driving without shifting gears... driving without a clutch pedal in the car... driving the Hydra-Matic way. Just step on the gas and away you go... smoothly... powerfully... automatically... in an Oldsmobile with General Motors' new and finer Hydra-Matic Drive. (Optional at extra cost.)

Promise More Meat To Miners

PITTSBURGH, June 25.—(INS)—The OPA today promised coal miners more meat providing they continue work. The promise came after organized groups of bituminous coal miners in western Pennsylvania, Illinois and Kentucky threatened to stay at home unless they were given more substantial food—meat, bread and flour. John Getz, western Pennsylvania department of agriculture representative, said that the government is setting aside fresh meat which will be turned over to firms operating stores in mining communities. Getz said the plan has been approved by Washington and distribution will start as soon as meat is available to the packers. He added that the department of agriculture now was working on a plan to alleviate the bread and flour shortage. Miners, meanwhile, remained adamant in their threat to stay at home unless immediate relief is granted. SAVANNAH, Ga.—(INS)—Savannah's new city code reveals that the oldsters who framed the city ordinances back in the old days knew nothing of the present day housing shortage. Still on the books is the regulation prohibiting citizens from sleeping in bakeries.

Princess Wins Scotch Plaudits

LONDON, June 25.—(INS)—Princess Elizabeth, heiress-apparent to the British throne, won Scotch plaudits today for appearing in public with a tartan sash over her white satin gown. She was applauded also for her eagerness to dance highland flings at the Royal Canadian ball in the smart Grosvenor house. The princess arrived with a small party soon after the ball began, and did not miss a dance during a long visit.

Will Return To Job As Civilian At Wartime Post

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—At long last, "Sully" is gone and they miss his square Irish face down at the San Francisco port of embarkation through which thousands of soldiers passed to and from the Pacific war. Except for a short haul overseas, Lieut.-Col. Jim Sullivan has spent the past four years as the port's popular Public Relations officer. But the ex-newsman left during the week-end to visit his folks back East and get out of uniform. Then, after a much overdue vacation, he will don long-awaited civilian clothes (if he can find any) and report for work. Whereupon, Mister Sullivan will sit down at Colonel Sullivan's old desk and once again become the port's Public Relations chief.

Not Unique Sullivan's decision to return to the same job in which he served during the war is hardly unique. Several of the boys are doing it. Major Alexander Blandin will don multi and return to his personnel position. Ditto Captain Frank Reichle, key man in machine records which keeps score on cargo and transient personnel, and Captain Larry Welch, in the control and planning section.

In a way, the return of such men in a civilian capacity typifies the transition of the famous wartime port to a permanent peacetime basis. One of the four army ports to be retained (the other three are New York, New Orleans and Seattle), its new emphasis is on fitting itself into the civilian community and operating as a part of the community's commercial economy. Such a program obviously—in these days of demobilization—is its only hope of retaining anything like its wartime efficiency. And you don't have to look around very long to realize that the port officials have no intention of being pulled into the same lazy old lethargy that permeated many an army camp prior to Pearl Harbor. When Brig.-Gen. Neal McKay took over his new command here, the big and burly port boss told newsmen:

Fit To Civilian Economy "It is intended to fit operations of the port closely into the civilian economy of this community, making use of commercial facilities to the greatest extent possible. All except purely military work will be done under commercial contract. The majority of personnel employed by the port will be civilian employees."

Thus, with commercial ships and civilian employees, the army would seem to be swiftly skeletonizing its military supply center here.

But the splash is not so drastic as it seems. Many a ship now under private contract sailed in the service during the war and could again. And many a civilian padding out the army personnel skeleton is an ex GI specialist back doing business at the same old stand. "There's still plenty of peacetime business to be done. All the occupation points and bases must be supplied with a steady flow of materials—not to mention soldiers, their dependents and War department civilians. These must be brought back some day, too."

And eventually, the grim task of bringing home the dead probably will fall upon the port and its shipping facilities.

All of these things combine to keep the port from becoming a stagnating peacetime ghost camp. There are other indications of the army's refusal to let demobilization bring deterioration.

For one thing, two million dollars already have been appropriated for improvement of the permanent port facilities during the coming fiscal year. Similar improvements and expansions of facilities are planned for future years.

Most of the shipping and construction work will be done by commercial contract, and most of the personnel around the port will be civilian employees—all of which will be profitable to the peacetime community economy.

But the facilities will be military-operated, the ships could sail for the service again in war as they did before and the Misters Sullivan, Blandin, Reichle and Welch could become colonel, major and captain again, just by swapping their shirts and pants! Could be the brass is on the ball... Could be.

First Hot Monday Brings Throngs Of 'Kids' Out To Park

Approximately 2500 'Kids' Take Over Cascade Park; Lake
Is Still Dry

For the first time since school let out, the weatherman really started the week right by turning on the heat much to the delight of about 2500 kids, from all nooks and crannies of the city, who were hoping for good weather so that they could enjoy "Kiddies Day" at Cascade Park.

A tour of the park revealed that all were having a "great time", from the smallest like hardly able to walk up to the teen age size. The swimming pool was by far the most popular spot in the park when over a thousand kids plunged into the cooling waters with still others lining up at the ticket window 15 or 20 deep waiting their turn to take their first swim of the year.

Other popular concessions were the Dodge'em, which has been completely renovated and running more smoothly than ever, the ponies, which were attracting the smaller kids, the revolving swings and the ever popular merry-go-round.

Cascade Park playground under the supervision of Miss Mildred I. Sargeant, was drawing its share of patronage from youngsters of all sizes. Outstanding feature of the playground which makes it the most popular in the city, is the fact that it stays open until 8 o'clock each evening, with parents coming out in the late afternoon with picnic baskets filled with goodies for the tired hungry youngsters.

Cascade Lake Still Empty

Cascade Lake which annually draws young and old alike who like to paddle around in the row boats was very dry. The dam was broken during the recent flood suffered in this area and as yet has not been repaired. Chris Coulthard, superintendent of the park, hopes that the lake will soon be filled up, but specifications for the dam have to be passed by the government, and as soon as these are passed, workmen will speedily repair the damage and the boats will be on the lake again. A new boat house has been erected and the boats are all shined up ready for use, just as soon as the water fills the lake bottom.

Late Monday afternoon, found a lot of tired but happy kids hoping that next Monday will be just as nice as this one when they can return to the popular amusement spot to take advantage of the reduced price on all the concessions.

SPRAY POTATOES FOR BLIGHT AND INSECTS

Low lime bordeaux spray (8-4-100) with DDT added will give insect and late blight control on potatoes.

After the second spray application, fair insect control may be obtained by using DDT in alternate sprays, provided the applications are no more than seven days apart.

Wettable DDT powder of 40 to 50 per cent strength may be added at the rate of two pounds per 100 gallons of spray, or one quart of water miscible DDT concentrate of 25 to 32 per cent strength.

Use of DDT will give control of flea beetles and leaf hoppers, two sucking insects which are reported moving on potato fields from hayfields in some sections in large numbers.

Mrs. Brodie BALANCES the budget

"You have to be a trained seal to balance a budget these days!" complains Mrs. Brodie.

"Everything costs so much! Take clothing—when you can get it," says Mrs. Brodie, "and look at the price tags! And food—that's simply skyrocketed! Housefurnishings—if you can find a house to furnish—are way up!

"But not electricity!" says Mrs. Brodie. "No, indeed!" says Mrs. Brodie.

Electricity has been coming down steadily for years!

"Electricity," says Mrs. Brodie, "is just about the easiest thing in my budget to balance!"

If you have a budget to balance—and who hasn't?—you'll appreciate that the low cost of electricity is no accident. It took plenty of practical planning and experience on the part of the folks in this company who—like Mrs. Brodie—have budgets to balance, too.

(Don't take Mrs. Brodie's word for the rise in living costs. The U. S. Department of Labor will furnish you the figures, if you're interested.)

Louise Carnegie, Widow Of Magnate, Dies At 89 Years

Aged Woman Succumbs At Her
New York Summer Home After Year's Illness

NEW YORK, June 25.—(INS)—Mrs. Louise Whitfield Carnegie, widow of the steel magnate, Andrew Carnegie, died Monday at the age of 89.

Mrs. Carnegie became ill a year ago at her summer home in Millbrook, N. Y., and never recovered completely. She had not, however, been confined to her bed.

Her granddaughter, Mrs. Gordon Thompson, flew from England on May 12 to be with her, and was at her bedside when the end came.

Mrs. Carnegie was born in this city March 7, 1857, daughter of wealthy John Whitfield. She married Andrew Carnegie, 20 years her senior in 1887.

In the gay '90s she was thus the wife of one of the world's richest men, and entertained accordingly, but upon his death, she went into virtual retirement. She was rarely seen except on leaving each spring for Scotland and returning in the fall.

She continued his many philanthropies, and during both wars placed her entire Scottish household at the disposal of the British government.

She was devoted to her one daughter, Margaret, now Mrs. Boswell Miller, who occupied a house adjoining, and to four grandchildren, who romped in the Carnegie gardens.

Despite the close relationship between Mrs. Carnegie and her late husband, during the years of their marriage they went separate ways Sunday mornings. She went to Brick Presbyterian church, he to Central Presbyterian. Carnegie died in 1919.

Mrs. Carnegie in 1921 received the honorary degree of Master of Humane Letters from New York University, and in 1935 the honorary Doctor of Laws Degree from St. Andrews University. She was given the freedom of the city of Dunfermline, Scotland, 1907, and of Edinburgh in 1933.

Philly Fans Are Going Crazy With Team Climbing Up

Phillies Leave Cellar Berth And Head For First Division;
Crowds Increase

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—(INS)—The sudden upward spirit of the Phillies, which has brought them to within a game and a half of the first division, has brought them the kind of fan-support that movies usually attribute only to the Brooklyn Dodgers.

One Philadelphia fan already applied to the Phil's office for a world series ticket—he's that sure of the Blue Jay boys.

Attendance so far this season is way ahead of last year's mark for the whole season. More than 35,000 turned out Sunday and every seat was gone an hour before play. So far this year, the Phils have had 44,265 customers (398,646 paid) against 310 paid for all of last season's home games, when the Phils held undisputed title to the cellar.

YOUNGSTER SUFFERS INJURIES

HARRISBURG, June 25.—(INS)—Thomas Termin, 10, of Harrisburg, was suffering today from chest injuries sustained in a near-fatal fall in a quarry at West Fairview.

The boy stopped his fall down the 35-foot ravine by grasping a tree jutting from a ledge.

Grandpappy Jenkins says an old-fashioned father is one who only fretted because the oldest boy swiped his best ties and shoes and had no worries of Sweet Sixteen copping his shirts and blue jeans.

HARRISBURG—Pete Shickley, veteran fire truck pilot, is a die hard. He insists he'd rather handle a team of horses on an engine than a motor.

Benswanger Admits Possible Sale Of Pirates Club

Syndicate May Purchase Bucs Is Indication

Asking Price Near Three Million, Attorney Charles Margiotti Interested

TEAM CURRENTLY RESTS IN CELLAR

PITTSBURGH, June 24.—(INS)—The way was cleared today for a person or a group of persons—with a couple of million dollars—to purchase the Pittsburgh Pirates, current tenants of the National league cellar.

Bill Benswanger, president of the Pirates, broke a prolonged silence and admitted he has had "superficial discussions" regarding the possible sale of the club.

Margiotti Interested

The admission came in the wake of a report that a syndicate, headed by Charles J. Margiotti, state administrator during the Earle administration, was ready to bid as high as three million dollars for the franchise, including Forbes Field and the far-flung farm system.

Benswanger admitted that Margiotti's inquiry was one of "at least a dozen" he has had during the past two weeks, adding:

"Mr. Margiotti and I have discussed the matter. No offer was made."

The bald, bespectacled attorney told reporters:

"I have nothing to say on the matter now. If anything develops you'll get the word from me. I'm leaving tonight on business for Washington—but the business is not trying to buy the Senators."

Others Are Linked

Linked with the syndicate was the name of Col. W. F. Rockwell, a wealthy Pittsburgh industrialist, who pleaded surprise when queried on the possible sale.

"It's news to me," he said. "I don't know how my name got involved."

Previously it had been reported that two other syndicates—one headed by Oscar Salenger and another by Bing Crosby—were dickering for the club. But on both occasions Benswanger denied having talked with anyone concerning the purchase of the club.

Hawks Retain Lead In Canco League

Robins Make Life Miserable For Hawks Monday, "G. I." Dave Speed Wins Again

American Can company golfers had another enjoyable round of golf Monday night at the Castle Hills course, the league-leading Hawks having a rough evening losing to the Robins captained by Jerry Allen 8½ to 3½, but retaining their league lead with 46 points to 43½ for the Robins. Lloyd Harris is captain of the league toppers.

The feature match of the evening was "G. I." Dave Speed easily winning over his worthy opponent, "Fats" Pitzer, the former soldier having won all of his matches in the league to date, for the Hawk team. Medal honors were split three ways with "Sluggo" Murphy, Bob "Ball and Chain" Speed and "Cap" Harris low scorers. Blind bogey winners were Fred "Hotshot" Williams, and Al "Sureshot" Ellis.

Standing of the league to date: Hawks 46, Robins 43½, Sparrows 31½. On the 23, the cellar champions are captained by "Windy Bill" Ellis.

U. S. In Need Of Olympic Talent

MINNEAPOLIS, June 25.—(INS)—The United States will have to develop a host of new talent in the next two years to hold its customary place in the 1948 Olympic games.

This was a recent finding of the N. C. A. A. track meet in Minneapolis Saturday, which formally ended the 1946 college track and field season.

Next week-end at San Antonio, Tex., the non-collegians will get their chance in the National AAU title meet. But it is doubtful whether the marks here will provide any more basis for optimism along those who like to see the Stars and Stripes supreme in sports.

For nine long years now, thousands of women nearing middle life have been writing us grateful statements like the above about the results of using Endocrine. It is evidence like this that enables us to say to you that, in our opinion, Endocrine has no equal in the way it helps many women to regain firmness, freshness, enchanting youthful loveliness of appearance for the skin of face and throat. Endocrine contains Activol[®], an effective replacement for woman's own natural, skin-beautifying substance. Absorbed by the skin, it helps restore normal growth to ageing cells and tissues. Ask for and insist upon Endocrine. Many report marked results in only 30 days.

Death Toll From Farm Accidents Shows Increase

Sixteen Thousand Farm Residents
Killed By Accident During Past Year

Death toll from accidents among farming people increased last year, according to the National Safety Council.

Sixteen thousand farm residents were killed in 1945 and 15,000 injured, the highest toll since 1942. "The rising farm toll," emphasizes the timeliness of President Truman's call for action in his proclamation of July 21-27 as National Farm Safety Week.

The annual report reveals the following: Farm home accidents took the greatest toll with 6,500 deaths, as compared with 6,000 in 1944. There were 950,000 non-fatal injuries. Motor vehicle accidents in the farm areas rose from 4,300 in 1944 to 4,900 last year. Farm work accidents killed 4,500 including 600 of the motor vehicle fatalities. Thirty thousand were injured. Agriculture suffered 53 accidental deaths per 100,000 workers. The rate for all the nation's workers was 31. Public non-motor vehicle accidents, on and off the farm, took 1,000 lives.

Fire destroyed farm property valued at $90,000,000, one-fifth the national fire loss last year.

The farmer is going all out toward the food shortage and the supply of necessary foods to feed our famine stricken allied nations. We must all do our part to preserve the manpower for farm power in this all out effort toward the raising of foods so necessary to sustain life and make this a peaceful world. Help the farmer at every turn of the road this summer. He needs your help.

High School Girls' Conference Under Way At College

Northfield Conference Is In Progress At Westminster College During Week

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., June 25.—The High School Girls' Northfield Conference from the Lake Erie region under the direction of the Northfield League opened at Westminster college, June 20. The conference, which draws members from 37 schools from western Pennsylvania and western New York, will continue through June 27.

This interdenominational conference is held to help the girls discover the place of Christ in their lives and apply His principles to the problems of the world. Their theme is "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you."

Classes are conducted in the morning with recreation and athletics on the program for the afternoon. The evenings are devoted to group meeting and guest speakers.

Teachers for the conference are Rev. James T. Cleland, professor at Duke university; Rev. John L. Bates, Wooster college; Rev. Robert Nelson Back, East End Christian church, Pittsburgh; Rev. Russell H. Bishop, First Baptist church, Erie, Pa.; and Paul G. Macy, regional secretary, World Council of Churches, Chicago. Dr. Robert F. Galbreath, retiring president of Westminster college, is one of the guest speakers.

Hanrahan Named As S. E. C. Chairman

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(INS)—President Truman on Monday sent the senate the nomination of Edmund M. Hanrahan of New York to be chairman of the securities and exchange commission.

Hanrahan succeeds Ganson Purcell, whose resignation as chairman of the S. E. C. was announced earlier today by the White House.

Purcell's resignation came after the White House, without explanation, recently nominated Hanrahan as his successor.

SCHOOLHOUSE HOME

CEDAR FALLS, Ia.—(INS)—Rudolph Bjorklund of Cedar Falls has his housing problem solved—merely by going back to school.
However, Bjorklund didn't return to study. He bought the school house for $800.
Built in Cedar Falls 70 years ago, the little white frame building was moved to a lot Bjorklund owns, where it will be remodeled into a modern house for approximately $2,000.

INCREASED ADOPTIONS

CHICAGO.—(INS)—Petitions for child adoptions have more than tripled in Virginia during the past five years, the American Public Welfare Association reports. A state survey revealed that wartime conditions were in part responsible. Foster fathers in the armed services filed adoption papers as a step toward giving their foster children the right to receive government allotments. In many cases, the adoption proceedings have been motivated by the desire of a foster child to take the family name of the foster parents.
